A Milestone Moment for Our Community

By June 30, 2021, the Community Foundation for the Alleghenies passed the $100 million threshold in total assets. $101,635,551 to be exact. While reaching the $100 million threshold is admirable, what does it really mean?

What it means is that we are a growing, healthy, local foundation with more assets, which provides more flexibility to address important community needs opportunities. It adds weight to our efforts. It shows resilience in our community as we recover from some of the hits we’ve taken and provides a legacy for our community’s future.

Perhaps best of all, because this came from you, not from a Rockefeller or Bill Gates, this reveals our community’s grassroots strength, something in which all of us should take a bit of pride.

Implicit in this asset growth is that the Community Foundation possesses a level of trust, credibility, and operational sophistication to manage and grow such an amount. To this point, this year the Foundation was recognized with the highest possible rank of transparency, a Platinum Seal, through GuideStar by Candid. This progress is a testament not only to our staff, but also to those who dedicate time to serving on our board and committees. We would like to welcome Dr. Tom Otis and Deacon Jeffrey Wilson to the board, and also Michelle Tokarsky, who has rejoined the board and Executive Committee. And we welcome Alan Metzler and Kyle Kunkle, who have joined the Finance Committee; and Craig Saylor, who has joined the Investment Committee. Allie Hoffman has joined the Somerset County Advisory Board and Haley Feaster, Dr. Tom Otis, and Alison Hostetler have joined the Bedford County Advisory Board.

After nearly 30 years, Dr. Donato Zucco has stepped down from the board. Don’s counsel will be missed, but his support over the years is greatly appreciated. Also, the passing of Gary Horner and Raymond DiBattista should be noted. Gary was a founding member of the Foundation and was the attorney who filed our incorporation documents 31 years ago, and Ray served on CFA’s board for nearly 20 years.

In these pages you will read about the newly established Engagement Committee and its founding members. We believe you will hear more from them in the upcoming years. We appreciate their dedication and volunteer leadership.

We welcome Emily Wood to our staff as Executive and HR Assistant.

We hope you enjoy the enclosed information and stories. There is a lot more to see in our full annual report on our website, including a list of all our generous donors, our full grant list from the past fiscal year, and additional financial information.

Best wishes, and thank you for your continued support.

Mark Pasquerilla
Board Chair

Mike Kane
President and Executive Director

As always, there are a lot of people to thank for making the Foundation what it is. Over 120 volunteers serve on various grant and scholarship committees, and we thank you for your efforts. We also want to acknowledge our hard-working community partners—nonprofits and grassroots efforts that continue to flourish, such as the Cambria County BackPack Project. CFA administers the AmeriCorps membership that allows for a coordinator who engages volunteers and makes sure meals make it to kids who need them. We appreciate the time and talent that so many people commit to making the project a success.

We also want to thank Mark Thomas in Bedford and the Somerset County Commissioners for providing us office spaces in those counties and AmeriServ Financial for hosting us at our Johnstown office.
Thank you to every one of the 31,734 donors over the past 31 years who have helped us reach this important milestone for our community!

*Fiscal Year June 30, 2021 (unaudited)

See full lists of grants, funds, donors, and financial activity at cfalleghenies.org/about.
Community Foundation for the Alleghenies was established to be agile, adaptive, and forward-looking, and the Foundation’s grantmaking and initiatives over the past fiscal year demonstrate the capacity of that intention. The COVID-19 Rapid Response Fund, launched in March 2020 with $100,000 each from CFA and Lee Initiatives Health and Wellness Endowment, put donors’ generosity to work immediately, with the first distributions deployed within a matter of weeks. Donations continued throughout summer and fall 2020, with ongoing rolling distributions to nonprofits facing urgent needs created by the pandemic. In total, 76 individual donors made gifts to that emergency fund, and $312,595 was distributed to 72 nonprofits in our region. Much of CFA’s annual fall and spring grantmaking, totaling $429,256, also responded to COVID-19-related issues on some level, whether it was upgrading technology to enhance virtual programming for arts and education or helping festival organizers regroup and reach new people as the community re-opened after pandemic restrictions were lifted. Similarly, an additional $100,000 CFA grant to Visit Johnstown allowed local business owners to apply for funding to regroup and recover, and it bolstered efforts to re-open, reach new people, and grow.

In addition, CFA supported and administered grassroots response and recovery efforts, such as funds in Cambria, Bedford, and Somerset counties to help struggling service workers around the holidays.

CFA also partnered with the Somerset County Commissioners to administer and quickly deploy federal funding to reimburse struggling nonprofits for expenses related to serving the community during the pandemic. Those efforts all reflect the way CFA is uniquely positioned to care for our friends and neighbors through challenges, always with an eye for preparing for what the future may bring.

Another of those forward-looking steps over the past year was the creation of CFA’s new Engagement Committee, a group of active community members from across the region who are stepping into leadership roles at the Foundation by working with donors, grantees, and the broader community. Their perspectives, and the input they share from their work in the community, will help guide the Foundation’s future.

Committee Chair Katie Kinka said she is encouraged by this step to foster leadership. “We often talk about the need to create more authentic outlets and opportunities for younger leadership in the community—real positions of influence—but what does that actually look like?” she said. “Are we as a community truly interested in passing the torch, and if so, how do we prepare the next generation to lead the charge? I’m appreciative of the Foundation for taking a very intentional step in this direction, and for encouraging and empowering us to be advocates, ambassadors, and agents of change for our region.”
Responding to Real Needs, Now and Always

Building Community and Cultivating Place

CFA has been a longtime proponent and funder of placemaking projects for their potential as economic drivers and as a means to improve quality of life for residents who call our region home.

Two local projects highlight the importance of that approach and the power of partnerships: the developing amenities at Roxbury Park, the largest in the City of Johnstown, and efforts to make the Inclined Plane hillside and connecting waterways and trails a valuable, exciting, and multifaceted attraction.

This past year, many of the efforts that have long been underway—in some cases for 10 years or more—began to come to fruition.

At Roxbury Park, where CFA has awarded grants totaling more than $100,000 to various partners since 2006, local leaders and the city moved ahead with bidding out the much-anticipated Roxbury Park hockey rink resurfacing project.

CFA’s direct grantmaking for park improvements included over $45,000 to the Roxbury Bandshell Preservation Alliance and $88,500 to the city: $77,500 for restoration of the hockey rink, $6,000 for tennis court lighting, and $5,000 for baseball field backstops.

Over the years, the CONCEPT Playground Distribution Fund, managed at CFA, supported construction of an integrated playground at the park, which creates opportunities for children of all abilities and development to enjoy the space. That fund raised more than $109,000 through grassroots efforts as well as support from local organizations and nonprofits. The city also has received an additional $60,000 from a CFA fund to complete the Roxbury Playground project.

Through seed funding, grantmaking, building connections, and helping to secure state and federal funding, CFA also has served as a key supporter of developments on Johnstown’s Inclined Plane hillside. This year, the Foundation gathered 17 partners on the local, state, and federal level to highlight extensive progress on the hillside, which most recently includes: progress on plans for Sliver Park at the base of the Inclined Plane, including boat and fishing access; continued development of the popular Inclined Plane Mountain Biking Trail System; a planned Coconut Place Trailhead to provide access to bicycle trails from the city’s Kernville neighborhood; additional connections to larger trail systems; and funding for a long-awaited remediation plan for the Stonycreek River Discharge.

That’s all in addition to a multimillion dollar structural and mechanical rehabilitation for the hillside’s key visual and historical feature—a linchpin for the broader development plans and a project that has received $257,000 in grant funding from CFA.
The Somerset County Mobile Food Bank, a grantee of the Somerset County Community Fund, distributes healthy food to families in need at Central City Recreation Park. Since its inception, the fund has distributed $209,080 to benefit children, youth, and families in the county.

Somerset County residents have once again stepped up to unexpected challenges and heartily supported the Community Foundation and the #SomersetCountyGives endowment campaign.

Over the past year, new Somerset County funds and legacies have helped to ensure clean waterways now and into the future, and to upgrade recreational facilities, small community playgrounds, and parks. New trails were opened to enhance an already busy trail system in the county. Two veteran parks began construction, and daycares were kept open to support working families. Many fire departments around the county were able to keep their doors open during the pandemic despite not being able to hold fundraisers—and then grants were made for valuable equipment to help them be even more effective and safe. Watershed projects were supported, and art and history facilities and nonprofit organizations that might not have otherwise survived in tough times were able to continue providing much-needed services. New scholarships, along with the hundreds of others already in place, once again gave so many Somerset County students not only financial help, but also the feeling of support from a community that cares about their education and their future. The Community Foundation also supported economic development projects in several Somerset area communities and facilitated energy project grant awards to help to save costs and advance sustainable energy around the county.

All of this, and so much more, happened because of the many donors who thought ahead, and those who are doing the same now for future generations.

The Somerset County Endowment campaign is on track to reach the first $1 million dollars for the Somerset County Community Fund, a testament to the work and continued efforts of the Somerset County Advisory Committee and the Endowment Committee.

That fund has awarded $308,867 in Somerset County since its inception—and thanks to each one of the thousands of donors from the past right up through the present, that fund and its grantmaking will continue to grow forever and support the children, individuals, and families who call the county home.

\textit{A Legacy of Caring}
Bedford County Endowments was able to further boost its impact and support for nonprofit groups in Bedford County in 2020. The 2020 Fall Grant round was the first time that Bedford County Endowments was able to provide grant money exclusively to Bedford County projects from the Bedford County Community Fund. Those inaugural recipients, selected by CFA’s Bedford County Advisory Committee members, were: Bedford County Chamber of Commerce, Bedford County Heritage Trust, Bedford County Players, Bedford County Pink Ribbon Fund, The National Coverlet Museum, Breezewood Volunteer Fire Company, Mark Clark Memorial Park, and The Coffee Pot (pictured above).

To build on that momentum, the Bedford County Endowments will be launching a new ongoing fundraiser this fall to continue to grow the Bedford County Community Fund, which is designed to support Bedford County through grantmaking every year, forever. This new endeavor—Bedford County Change Makers—will recruit locals and anyone who cares for Bedford County to give a little to make a big change. To join, members commit to a small recurring contribution on a monthly basis. All donors will be recognized on CFA’s Bedford County Endowments webpage.

Half of the proceeds raised will go to the Bedford County Community Fund so that the fund can continue to grow forever. The other half of the proceeds will go to a Bedford County nonprofit who applies for a grant. That grant will be voted on by the members of Bedford County Change Makers.

Reach out to CFA’s Bedford County Director Dina McGee to get connected and be among the first official Bedford County Change Makers. You can reach her at dmcgee@cfalleghenies.org or (814) 623-0044. You can also sign up online at give.cfalleghenies.org/bechangepmakers.

New for this year
When it comes to charitable giving, trust matters. The Community Foundation understands that the relationships individuals have with their professional advisors are important, so we work to enhance those connections. Through PLAN (Philanthropic Leaders Advisory Network), we help to give wealth advisors creative solutions and an enhanced range of services they can provide to their clients, all with a goal of building assets for the benefit of our community. If you are looking for an accountant, attorney, financial advisor, or other professional, especially when it comes to your estate planning and charitable giving goals, consider contacting one of our PLAN members.
